

Abstract

A niobium capacitor comprising an anode (1) with niobium as its main component, and a dielectric layer (4) formed on the anode. The anode (1) and the dielectric layer (4) are in close contact with each other with an interface therebetween. A junction region is defined as the region including the interface. The junction region contains a specific amount of manganese.